DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

A broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. See MPEP § 2173.05(c). Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949). In the present instance, claims 6-7 recites the broad recitation ratio, and the claim also recites ratio preferably from 1:20 to 10:1 (see claim 7 for same error) which is the narrower statement of the range/limitation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kliegman et al. (US 4328026; 5/4/82), Rodham et al. (US 2002/0025986; 2/28/02) or Itoh et al. (US 2005/0159599; 7/21/05) and Burns et al. (5035738; 7/30/91). Kliegman et al. teach a composition comprising a cyclic amide (abstract, column 2 lines 19-22). Kliegman et al. teach that actives, including the herbicide paraquat, can be added to the composition (column 4 lines 18-32). Itoh et al. teach a composition comprising cyclic amides or cyclic amines such as 1,3-dimethyl-2-imidazolidone (abstract, paragraphs 91 and 92). Itoh et al. teach that actives, including the herbicide paraquat, can be added to the composition (paragraphs 108, 114-115). Rodham et al. teach a composition that can contain a water soluble amine including aminoethylpiperazine (paragraph 27) and a pesticide including the herbicide paraquat (paragraph 59). Neither of the prior art references exemplify a composition comprising paraquat and cyclic amides such as 1,3-dimethyl-2-imidazolidone and/or aminoethylpiperazine. In addition, neither of the prior art references teach a composition comprising paraquat plus a cyclic amine such as N-aminopropylmorpholine (APM). However, Burns et al. teach a herbicidal composition comprising N-aminopropylmorpholine (cyclic amine) and glyphosate (claim 1). It would have been obvious to combine the teachings of Kliegman et al., Rodham et al. or Itoh et al. and Burns et al. to arrive at an invention comprising paraquat and N-aminopropylmorpholine. One would have been motivated to do this since all references individually teach a herbicidal utility. It is obvious to combine references directed to the same utility. Moreover, it would have been obvious to make an invention comprising paraquat plus cyclic amides such as 1,3-dimethyl-2-imidazolidone and/or aminoethylpiperazine. One would have been motivated to do this because the prior art references suggest the combination of cyclic amides and/or cyclic amines plus paraquat. With respect to the concentration of paraquat, an artisan in the field would have been expected to determine the optimum paraquat concentration. One would have been motivated to do this in order to make an invention that would have been effective as a herbicide without destroying desirable plants.

Election Status

The elected invention comprising paraquat and aminopropylmorpholine is not allowable. See rejection above.
